3-3-3 EARTH DAY 2005

Earth Day organizational activities at various activity work sites include:

U.S. Army Corps of Engineers: Follow the journey of a drop of water from the mountain to the sea and check out the Kaneohe-Kailua Dam 3-D map, exhibits on flood survivors, wetlands, navigation, and shoreline protection! Learn more about the Partnering In The Pacific on the Ala Wai Canal Project (Prepared By: Townscape, Inc. and Eugene P. Dashiell, AICP in cooperation with Oceanit) and find out where Hawaiian sand comes from through a display provided by the University of Hawaii Sea Grant College Coastal Geology Extension Program.

Army Garrison, Hawaii Environmental Program: Hawaiian crafts, display board and handouts on the Cultural Resources Program which continues to work closely with Native Hawaiians to utilize traditional cultural resources on Army properties. The Army has been conducting tours at Makua Military Reservation since November 2004.

Board of Water Supply: Watershed display, water tattoos and information on developing renewable water supplies, like recycle water, seawater desalination and deep ocean water supplies that will afford a foundation for sustainable economic development.

City & County of Honolulu Department of Environmental Services: Public education on ways to reduce water pollution, including information on storm water quality management in Waikiki.

Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS): Take the wheel for a spin on various soil erosion topics.
